

Faculty: "Discussion" Locking

Hart Wilson - 2018-01-12 - Comments (0) - Faculty

Moodle 3.2 introduces a discussion locking option for forums—but don't get too excited yet.... this does not mean that we can set due dates for posting to a forum. :-(

The screenshot is divided into two main sections. The top section shows the 'Discussion locking' settings for a forum. It includes a dropdown menu for 'Lock discussions after period of inactivity' with options: 'Do not lock discussions', '1 day' (selected), '1 week', '2 weeks', '1 month', '2 months', '3 months', '6 months', and '1 year'. Below this are sections for 'Post threshold for blocking' and 'VeriCite'. The bottom section shows a forum thread titled '« Test Forum'. A yellow banner at the top of the thread reads 'This discussion has been locked so you can no longer reply to it.' The thread contains a post by 'Student1 One' titled 'My test post' from '14 days ago' with the text 'Posting this as a test of locked forums.' and '0 replies'. A small cartoon avatar of a student is visible next to the post.

If you enable the locking function, individual discussion threads will close down after a set period of inactivity—the forum as a whole will remain open to continued participation, but any thread that hasn't had a response made to it after that time will be shut off from new posts. The image at right shows what students would see once a discussion thread closes.

We don't recommend enabling this function unless you have a compelling need.