Students: Avoid Losing Work in Textboxes

Hart Wilson - 2026-10-07 - Comments (2) - Students

Beware of inactive browsers! Your carefully crafted response may dissolve into cyberspace if your browser times out while you are drafting it. Unfortunately, there is no way to retrieve your work. Some suggestions for preventing future losses include:

- Saving your work periodically.
- Drafting your response in a Word document (or other word processing application), then copying and pasting it into your comment box.

Note: If you copy from Word and end up with weird formatting, select the pasted text and click on the Format pull-down menu then Clear formatting as shown below. That will "clean up" the Word source code that was copied over and leave you free to format your text as you would like it to appear.

Comments (2)

Comments (2)

MM Margaret Mason
1 year ago
This was very helpful.
NP Norma Pantoja
1 year ago
This is helpful information that can help me avoid stressful situations caused by losing my assignments.